b ☞ Deuise in our common Law, is where a man in his testament, giueth or bequeatheth his goods or his lands to another after his decease. And where such deuise is made of goods, if the executors will not deliuer the goods to the deuise, the deuise hath no remedy by the common law. But it behooueth him to haue a Citation against the executors of the testator to appeare before the ordinary, to shew why he performeth not the will of the testator. For the deuisee may not take the legacie, and serue himselfe, but it must be deliuered to him by the executors. It commeth from the French word Diuiser, i. dispertiri, discernere, separare, distinguere, because those lands or goods which appertaine to the deuisour, by this act are distributed into many parts. Wherefore I thinke it better written diuise then deuise. Howbeit it were not absurd to derive this word from the French deuiser, i. sermocinari, confabulari, consilium conferre. For in this sence, it agreeth in some sort with the nature of the act of the testator, and with the Etymologie of a Testament set downe by Iustinian, who saith that testamentum is quasi mentis testatio. tit: de Testamentis ordinan: in Institut: and testatio mentis, *cannot be so well, as by talke and conference with our wise and skilfull friends. Gr: αὐλόαρχος, τοπάρχης, à τόπος, i. locus, & ἄρχος, i. dux, præfectus, sunt enim comites, particularis cuiusdam loci, regionis, aut districtus præfecti, ab α, i. ἅμα, simul, νια, & ἔλυθος, i. via: q. qui viâ cum altero & eadem via ambulat. The manner of creating Earles is by girding them with a sword, ¶ Cambden. pag: 107. but see the solemnity thereof described more at large in ¶ Stowes annales p. 1121. The occasion why these Earles in later time haue had no sway our the County, where of they beare their name, is not absurdly signified in Sir Thomas Smith. lib. 2. cap: 14. where he saith, that the Shyreeue is called Vicecomes, as (Vicarius Cómitis) following all matters of Iustice, as the Earle should doe: and the because the Earle is most commonly attendant vpon the King in his warres or otherwise. So that it seemeth that Earles by reason of their High employments, being not able to follow also the businesse of the County, were deuested of all that burthen, and onely enioyed the honour, as now they doe. And the Shyreeue, though he be still called vicecomes, yet all he doth is immediately vnder the King and not vnder the Earle. h ☞ Iustices in Eyre, (Iusticiarij itinerantes) are so tearmed of the French (Erre, i. iter, a journey) which is an old word, as (a grand erre, i. magnis itineribus) prouerbially spoken. The vse of these in auncient time, was to send them with Commission into diuers Counties, to heare such causes especially, as were tearmed the plees of the Crowne: and therefore one may imagine they were so sent abroad for the ease of the subiects, who must else haue come to the Kings Bench, if the cause were too high for the Countie Court. They differed from the Iustices of Oyer and Terminer, because they (as is aboue said) were sent vncertainely, vpon any vprore or other occasion in the Countrey: but these in Eyre (as M. Gwin setteth downe in the Preface to his Reading) were sent but euery seuen yeare once: with whome, Horne in his Mirrour of Iustices, seemeth to agree, lib. 2. and lib. 3. cap. de Iustices in Eyre, where he also declareth what belonged to their Office. These were instituted Hen: 2. as M. Camden in his Britan: witnesseth. And Roger Houeden, parte poster. annal. fol. 313. b. hath of them these words: Iusticiarij itinerantes constituti per Henricum secundum, i. qui diuisit regnum suum in sex partes, per quarum singulas tres Iusticiarios itinerantes constituit, quorum nomina hæc sunt, &c. * And my Lord Coke to the Reader in the ninth part of his Reports citeth out of a very auncient and learned Treatise of the Lawes and Vsages of this Kingdome, whereby this Realme was gouerned about 1100. yeares past, entituled by him the mirrour of Iustices, cap. 1. §. 3. thus: Iusticiarij Itinerantes or Iustices in Eyre, Commissioners itinerant, assigned to haue conusance of Plees. In aide of such Eyres, the Sherifes Turnes and Viewes of Franck-pledges are necessarie. And all those whome the good men of such Enquests did endite of a capitall offence, the Kings were wont to destroy without any answere (which vsages are yet in practise in Almaigne:) But by warrant of Pitie and Mercie (because the frailtie of man cannot refraine from sinne, vnlesse God of his especiall grace giue him abstinence) it is accorded, that no Appellée nor Inditée shall be destroyed without answere.

For in these daies since they are become adorned with the* Knights cincture, presently they arise and rage, &c. And for the ceremonie to be * girt with a Sword, it may seeme to haue proceeded from the militarie discipline of the Romans, because as they deemed it vnlawfull to fight with their enemy before they were bound to their militarie oath, by a drawen Sword: euen so our forefathers thought they might not goe to warfare lawfully, before they were by this ceremonie lawfully authorised: according to which wee reade that William Rufus, King of England, was dubbed Knight by Lanfranck the Archbishop. * Afterwards Kings were wont to send their sonnes vnto the neighbour Princes to receiue Knighthood at their handes: thus was our K. Henrie the second sent vnto Dauid K. of Scots, and Malcolme K. of Scots vnto our K. Henrie the second, and our K. Edw. the first, vnto the K. of Castile, to take of them militarie or virile Armes, for these termes and phrases they vsed in that Age for the Creation of a Knight: Then it was also, that besides the Sword and Girdle, * gilt Spurres were added for more ornament: whereupon at this day they are called in latine Equites Aurati, moreouer they had the priuiledge to vse and weare a signet: which before they were dubbed Knight, in those daies, they could not doe, as may be gathered out of Abendon booke. In Ages ensuing, Knights were made by their wealth and state of liuing: For they which had a great Knights fee, that is fiue hundred and foure score Akers of Land, claimed as their right, the ornament and badges of Knighthood, nay rather vnder * H. 3. they were compelled to bee Knights as many as in the reuenewes of their Land as they then went 15^li. by the yeare, to the end, England, as well as Italie, might be strengthened with Chiualrie, and they that would not, or were not able to maintaine the honour of Knighthood, should fine for it, and pay a peece of money, this was an Edict by the K. in the yeare 1256. Hence it is that in the K.
